[The text in this block is a continuation of the Tibetan script from the previous block, written in a cursive style. It contains several lines of text, some of which are partially obscured by the binding of the manuscript. The text appears to be a commentary or a continuation of a narrative, discussing various topics related to the Buddhist path, including the importance of the guru and the practice of the Dharma.]

A detailed illustration of a Buddhist stupa or pagoda. The structure is composed of a multi-tiered base, a central spire with a pointed top, and a decorative archway (prabhavali) framing the entire monument. The stupa is set against a background of stylized clouds. The illustration is rendered in a traditional East Asian style, likely from a historical text or manuscript.
